OVERVIEW

The Need

The communities in the Sacred Valley around Cusco face significant healthcare challenges due to limited access to medical services and resources. High rates of preventable and infectious diseases, including tuberculosis, pneumonia, and malaria, are prevalent, with vector-borne illnesses like dengue and yellow fever posing additional threats. Poor water quality contributes to gastrointestinal diseases and parasitic infections, while inadequate dental care and nutrition are common issues, especially among children and the elderly.

Women's health is another critical concern in this region, with limited access to maternal care and health education contributing to high rates of complications during pregnancy and childbirth. Many families lack essential knowledge about disease prevention and healthy practices, which perpetuates cycles of illness and poor health outcomes.

These pressing health disparities highlight the urgent need for skilled medical professionals and volunteers to help address the healthcare crisis in the Sacred Valley. Your expertise and commitment can make a profound difference in improving the quality of life for these communities, where the need for medical support and education is immense.

Our Work

Since initiating relief efforts in Peru in 2012, International Medical Relief (IMR) has made a profound impact, with hundreds of dedicated volunteers and staff serving tens of thousands of patients. IMR is committed to deepening its partnership with local communities, providing vital health education, medical treatments, supplies, and equipment to support sustainable clinic operations.

Our missions are meticulously planned to align with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (UNSDGs) 3, 6, and 17, ensuring measurable outcomes that foster long-term health improvements.

Aligned with UNSDG 3: Good Health & Wellbeing, IMR collaborates closely with local partners to deliver hands-on care, enhance workforce density, and develop a new generation of healthcare and public health leaders. By working side-by-side with local healthcare professionals, we provide immediate care and contribute to the growth and resilience of local health systems.

Our commitment to UNSDG 6: Clean Water & Sanitation is evident in our efforts to empower communities with access to safe drinking water. We install water filtration systems, educate on hydration and hygiene, and support local initiatives to improve water quality, ensuring healthier, more resilient communities.

In line with UNSDG 17: Partnerships for the Goals, IMR works exclusively through formal invitations from local hosts, ensuring our missions address the most pressing needs. We believe in the power of collaboration and respect the guidance of our local partners to provide the most effective medical and dental care, as well as essential health education.

Join us in continuing this vital work as we build healthier, stronger communities in Peru and beyond!

This Mission

As an IMR volunteer, you will be at the forefront of delivering essential medical care to underserved communities in and around Cusco and the Sacred Valley. This region faces significant healthcare challenges, and your involvement is critical in addressing the diverse medical needs of these communities. Whether you are a doctor, nurse, dentist, pharmacist, or other healthcare professional, your skills will make a profound impact on the lives of those with limited access to care. Nonmedical volunteers, including families and friends, play a crucial role in the clinic setting, providing essential patient support, logistics, and education, and their contributions are vital to the overall success of our missions.

Our multidisciplinary team will address a wide range of health issues, from chronic illnesses like hypertension and diabetes to acute conditions such as infections and injuries. Additionally, we'll provide urgent dental and vision care and deliver health education on topics like disease prevention, nutrition, and hygiene. This mission is not just about treating patients during our visit; it's about creating a sustainable impact that empowers these communities long after our team has left.

IMR is committed to these communities beyond the duration of each mission. Returning regularly to the region ensures ongoing support and continuity of care. We build long-term relationships and provide regular follow-up services, continuous medical supplies, continued education and training, contributing to a sustainable improvement in health outcomes. Your participation in this mission is more than just a one-time effort; it's a vital part of a long-term commitment to creating lasting change in the health and well-being of the people of Cusco. Join us and be a part of this transformative journey, knowing that your service will contribute to a healthier future for these communities.

Clinic

You will likely see many patients with mosquito-borne illnesses, as well as those with infections, wounds, and common health problems. Frequently, these patients will go without health care. The Quechua people suffer greatly from a lack of knowledge about how to manage their healthcare, resulting in needless deaths among this already diminishing population.

Itinerary:

Day 1: Arrive in Cusco

Arrive in the breathtaking city of Cusco. Situated at 11,150 feet, this remarkable city features a rich history, mouthwatering cuisine, and vibrant colors everywhere you look.

Spend the morning wandering through the cobblestone streets and visiting the sites of the main square. We'll then head to Sacsayhuamán fortress, an impressive example of Inca military architecture. Onward to Kenko, where the sun, moon, and stars are worshipped. We'll end our day to visit to the Inka's Expression art workshop, where you will be able to see artists working in silver, paint, and wood – the perfect place to see Andean art.

Day 2: Rainbow Mountain

Don't forget your camera! Today we journey to the infamous Rainbow Mountain, located close to Cusco. We'll wind through gorgeous mountain roads making our way to the colorful range.

Your guide will lead you on a short hike to reach the top of the Rainbow Mountain.

We'll return to Cusco in the evening for a night of cultural activities and delicious local cuisine.

Day 3: Treasures of the Sacred Valley

Today you'll get to know the Sacred Valley. We'll stop along the way to visit Moray, to view the enormous circular terraces that were used by the Incas as a botanical laboratory many years ago.

We'll continue to Ollantaytambo, one of the most fascinating building complexes of the Inca Empire and the site of one of the Spanish Conquistadors rare strategic defeats. Famous for its terraced fields (cut into the hillsides), Ollantaytambo was an effective fortress as well as a religious center. We'll end our day with a visit to the village of Ollantaytambo, the only "living Inca town" and the best remaining example of Inca urban planning, with stone-paved streets that have been continuously inhabited since the 13th Century.

Day 4: Machu Picchu

Today is the day you've been waiting for! We'll catch the early morning train to Aguas Calientes, located at the base of Machu Picchu. This is no ordinary transport! The train ride is an experience within itself with cinematic views surrounding you.

We'll explore the ancient Incan ruins and hear stories of how this city was built. Don't forget your camera! These are memories & views you'll never want to forget.

Spend the evening down in Aguas Calientes enjoying Peruvian cuisine with a view of the rushing river below. Explore the streets of this charming town and maybe take a soak in the local hot springs.

Day 5: Machu Picchu | Departure Home

There is nothing quite like a sunrise on Machu Picchu. If you're up for it, get a head start before the sun and hike up the trail to the ruins. Watch as the morning fog lifts from the lush mountains and spend another day exploring the ruins.

This afternoon, we'll head back to Aguas Calientes to catch the returning train back to Cusco for our departures back home.
