Starting at: $2,600

OVERVIEW

The Need

This Mission

Belgium is currently home to approximately 100,000 Ukrainian refugees who fled their homeland between 2022 and 2026. The overwhelming majority are women, children, and the elderly—individuals who left not by choice but by necessity, driven from their cities by war. For many, there is no path homeward: their cities lie occupied or reduced to ruin, their prior lives rendered irrecoverable.

Displacement of this magnitude exacts a profound toll. Those who once cultivated stable, fulfilling lives in Ukraine—and particularly those at a stage of life when such stability felt permanent—now confront the formidable task of reconstructing an existence from nothing. Arriving in a foreign country without command of the language, without comprehension of unfamiliar legal systems, isolated from family and community, and stripped of both material resources and personal savings constitutes a form of hardship that resists easy description. It is unsurprising, then, that depression is widespread among this population, and that some individuals grapple with suicidal ideation.

This is precisely where our volunteers make the difference.

Behind every service we provide—every form translated, every appointment accompanied, every meal shared, every hour of companionship offered—stands a volunteer who chose to show up. Our volunteers are often the first face of welcome a family encounters, the patient tutor helping a child navigate a new language, the steady presence that reminds someone they have not been abandoned or forgotten. You do not need specialized credentials to make a meaningful contribution; you need only a willingness to listen, to assist, and to accompany someone through an exceptionally difficult chapter of their life.

Many of those we serve persevere for their children, striving to forge some semblance of a future in an adopted homeland, while still harboring hope that they might one day return once the war concludes. Your involvement—however modest it may seem to you—can be the difference between isolation and belonging for a family navigating that uncertainty.

This mission takes place alongside Saint Nicholas Day (Sinterklaas / Saint-Nicolas). This is one of the most beloved traditions in Belgium, especially for children, and it’s celebrated with real enthusiasm alongside — and somewhat separately from — Christmas.

Compounding this challenge, a fresh wave of displacement is now unfolding across Europe as Russian forces intensify their campaign against Ukrainian civilian infrastructure, leaving countless families to face a brutal winter without electricity, water, or heat. This escalation means the need for dedicated volunteers has never been more pressing.

Lodging/Transportation

For this disaster relief mission, you will be provided with safe, clean, and comfortable double-occupancy accommodations. Please note that meals are not provided.

Highlights

The war in Ukraine continues to fuel an increasingly desperate humanitarian crisis. International Medical Relief teams, embedded in the surrounding region to support Ukrainian refugees, are responding by expanding access to medical, dental, and mental health services, alongside sustainable health education for the communities affected by displacement.

Our highlight is the opportunity to serve refugees directly—delivering the compassionate, lifesaving care they deserve. This mission places particular emphasis on:

Per the requirements of our Ministry of Health partners, this mission does not include medication distribution. Yet even without pharmaceutical intervention, there remains a profound and meaningful scope of care we can offer our Ukrainian friends—one rooted in education, compassion, and human connection.

Arrivals and Orientation

You will fly into Brussels-National Airport (BRU), with an anticipated arrival time of 2:00 PM. Brussels is one of Europe's hidden gems, and your introduction to its charm will begin shortly after touchdown. The airport is situated northeast of the city center, offering a scenic glimpse of the surrounding landscape as you make your way to the hotel. Should you wish to arrange transportation from the airport to your accommodations, you may do so through IMR's travel partner, Worldwide Navigators, available for purchase within your portal under Trip Add-Ons.At 5:00 PM, the team will convene for orientation to prepare for the upcoming week of clinical service. Your team leader will provide an overview of the clinic, review IMR's clinic protocols and COVID-19 procedures, and discuss the communities you will be serving. At this time, your Health Declaration and negative COVID test results will be collected.Following orientation, you and your team will sort and organize all mission supplies. Please bring your donated items as well—everything will be sorted, organized, and repacked in preparation for clinic the following day.Dinner is on your own. Afterward, you are welcome to explore the city or rest ahead of your first day in clinic.

Clinic

Following breakfast on your own, the team will depart to the service site for your first day of clinic. Be sure to pack your daypack with all your snacks, sunscreen, hand sanitizer, camera, phone, water bottle, and diagnostic equipment.The first day of clinic is great. You will surely have an impact on our visiting Ukrainian friends. Make sure you understand your role and assignment and if you need to, ask for clarification. Look to your IMR alumni in the orange caps for guidance, and please stay in your assigned clinic role throughout the day. Don't forget your safety protocols! Most importantly, enjoy the special moments. The patients are so humbled to have you there to help them. They are grateful. Take in all these memories, as time will go quickly.In the evening, you will have a thorough debrief with your team, repack bags for tomorrow, turn in your scrubs, and complete the day's statistics.Afterwards, you are free to explore Brussels with its great venues for dining and entertainment.

Clinic

After a quick bite on your own, transport departs to the service site for another great day of clinic!IMR teams have a unique opportunity to monitor some chronic conditions in our clinics, as we have residents who live in the some of the Welcome Center shelters where we serve. Brush up on your diagnostic skills, as they will surely be put to great use!Our patients are primarily the elderly, children, and women. There are numerous opportunities for educating this population on best health care practices. IMR partners with multiple facilities so you will likely be serving in different locations. Remember to listen to the stories of the patients. These stories will go down in the history books as a testament to this trying time.In the evening, you will have a thorough debrief with your team, repack bags for tomorrow, turn in your scrubs, and complete the day's statistics.

Clinic

By this day of clinic, you are on a roll and have full knowledge all the ins and outs of clinic operations, hands-on! We appreciate you and all your service. Remember to take time to learn a story about one of your patients. We want you to walk away with a memory that stays in your heart. Let your team leader know if there is a special place you would like to work in clinic. As always, ask lots of questions to be sure you are prepared for your role.In the evening, you will have a thorough debrief with your team, repack bags for tomorrow, turn in your scrubs, and complete the day's statistics.

Clinic

As your week draws to a close, take a moment to recognize that the work you've done is an investment in a better tomorrow for our friends. The community healthcare education you and your team have delivered in a public health setting is far more than a supplementary service—it is a continuation of IMR's long-term, sustainable commitment to empowering the communities we serve.Education stands as an equal pillar alongside medical and dental care in the lives of our patients. Knowledge, once imparted, cannot be taken away; it remains with individuals and families long after our team has departed. When people are equipped with the understanding and tools to take charge of their own health and wellness, they move from a position of dependency to one of genuine self-sufficiency—capable of sustaining and building upon the progress made, long into the future.This is the enduring legacy of your service this week: not merely treatment rendered, but capacity built.

Free Day

Today you will have time to explore Brussels. Be sure to spend time in the Grand Place, originally a 12th-century market square that today is home to the Brussels Town Hall and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The architecture is simply amazing! There are galleries and museums everywhere just waiting for you to explore.Don’t miss the Atomium, the visible landmark with its silver balls created for the 1958 World’s Fair. The structure is made to represent an iron crystal magnified 165 billion times! Inside are exhibitions celebrating scientific discoveries and breakthroughs, and the view of Brussels from the top ball is spectacular.If trying the local culinary delights is your game, you can’t go wrong with Belgian waffles and Belgian chocolate. Other local favorites include spiced speculoos cookies, Flemish stew, and Stoemp, a Dutch version of loaded mashed potatoes. You won’t go hungry in Brussels!
