LETTER FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Dear Friend of IMR,

2015 was an exciting year for IMR! We traveled to more developing countries than ever and treated a record number of patients. In these countries, 1 in 20 children die before the age of five from preventable illnesses such as diarrhea and pneumonia. The medicines that our teams carry treat these diseases and, more importantly, the education that we provide in the communities we visit prevents disease from reoccurring and empowers the people to live healthier lifestyles.

We were also able to provide disaster relief in Nepal following the 7.8 magnitude earthquake that struck in April, killing 9,000 people and injuring 23,000 others. We used the upper floor of our warehouse for the first time to stage our disaster relief efforts, sending in multiple teams with colossal amounts of supplies. Thousands of people fled to Kathmandu after mudslides covered their communities or canyon craters formed in their front yards. These victims needed medical care, food, and clothing, and we provided all three.

One team went to an extremely remote location only reachable via helicopter and trekking. Here we met a young boy whose eye had been penetrated with a crochet needle. We were able to act swiftly and airlift him out on one of our helicopters to Kathmandu where we partnered with a local ophthalmologist who was able to save his eyesight.

Another met a family whose house collapsed on them during the earthquake. The young daughter in this family was fortunate to be in the doorway of her home when the earthquake struck as her house collapsed around her, but her legs and arm were trapped in the rubble. Her mother was in a similar situation, trapped from the waist down in cement and metal rubble. Her brother was also with them, but unfortunately, his injuries were too severe and he was unable to survive. The mother and daughter required many surgeries to recover from their injuries, and funds from IMR’s Partner Program were able to help pay for their care.

2016 is going to be an extraordinary year for us, and we have very ambitious goals, including the launch of a sustainable clean water project. We already have many mission trips scheduled for 2016 and into 2017 and are looking to add more. We are working to add more students to our volunteer rosters to help them gain invaluable experience in clinical rotations and public health with IMR medical and dental teams, and we continue to have an overwhelming number of volunteer medical providers eager to offer their services to those in need.

We are grateful for the support in the form of monetary donations, medical and other supplies, and mission volunteers who enable us to continue our work.

Very humbly,

Shauna King
