“Going to Ethiopia on my recent medical mission and being able to give this wonderful gentleman reading glasses so he could see his Bible clearly is one of the most wonderful and inspirational events in my life. I cannot explain how much it touched my heart and soul. His smile says it all.”

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YEAR

GUATEMALA VOLCANO DISASTER RELIEF

Following the eruption of the Volcán de Fuego in June, we mobilized a team of 81 volunteers led by seasoned disaster relief responders and a burn specialist from UC Davis Medical Center Burn Center.

We responded to communities most affected by the volcanic ash, which had covered the landscape with a thick, gray talcum powder-like substance.

We saw patients with respiratory illnesses, lung irritation, and chest discomfort as the result of inhaling the fine particles. Ash deposits worsened those already affected by dry coughs, head colds, and congestion, making breathing uncomfortable.

Burns and skin irritations from the volcanic heat and ash were widespread. Ash is very irritating to skin, noses, eyes, and lungs, leaving patients with secondary staph infections that required treatment with antibiotics. As is common in these situations, the very young and the very old suffered the most.

LOMBOK INDONESIA EARTHQUAKES

A strong earthquake hit the island of Lombok in Indonesia in July and several strong aftershocks followed. Officials in Indonesia reported more than 500 deaths and thousands of quake-related injuries. Entire villages were flattened, and people struggled to find shelter. Months later, many communities had yet to receive aid or healthcare because of limited access.

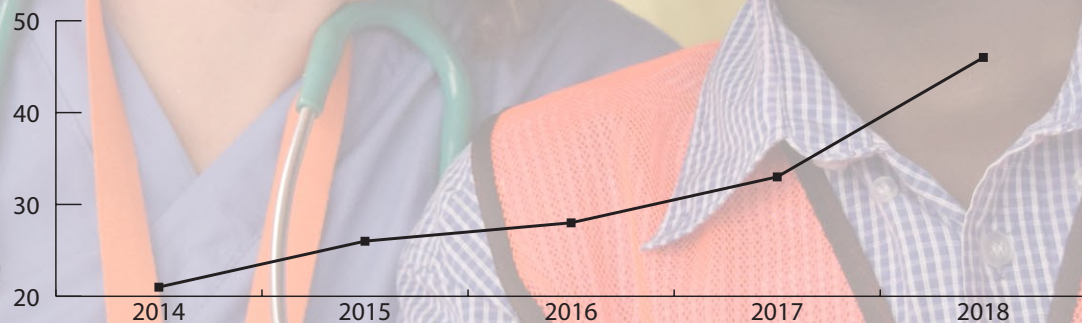

The IMR disaster relief team of 19 assisted in makeshift clinics set up following the earthquakes to provide acute medical care. Some required walking over a mile carrying medical supplies to access.

Our relief efforts also included installing water filters into cisterns to provide villagers with clean water. These water filters were purchased through donations made by IMR supporters.

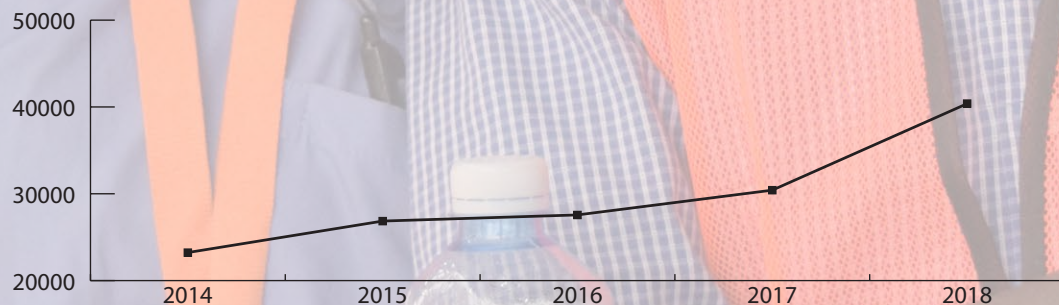

OUR ABILITY TO RESPOND TO COMMUNITIES IN NEED AROUND THE WORLD CONTINUES TO GROW.

"I am back from Uganda! It was such an incredible and humbling experience. My group and I spent six days in numerous different cities like Kampala, Entebbe, and Jinja, providing health care to the beautiful people of this country.

Being able to help these individuals and improve their health was amazing. As an RN, I helped provide medications to patients, assessed their problems, and most importantly of all made sure they knew they weren't alone and were cared about.

I hope that I can continue to provide those who are poverty stricken the health care that they so desperately need."

“My passion has always been to help others, but my dream has been to bring healthcare to countries that need it the most. Our small team made up of 14 amazing medical professionals, educated and treated over 500 patients in a short amount of time in Ethiopia, Africa. Ethiopia is a beautiful country filled with even more beautiful souls that will always have a place in my heart. With so many terrible and hateful things going on in this world, it was refreshing to give something so small to people that deserve it the most. Thank you once again for all the donations and support from my friends and family. This was a trip of a lifetime and I’m forever grateful for this experience. Until next time, Africa!”
